Transaction Update

FERC JUDGE CERTIFIES SETTLEMENT, NO HEARINGS NECESSARY

Western Resources today announced the settlement agreement at the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) in its merger with Kansas City Power & Light has been certified by a FERC administrative law judge and sent to the Commission for its approval. As a result, no hearings will be necessary at the FERC.

"We are extremely gratified that one of the last major steps in the regulatory approval process is near," said David C. Wittig, Western Resources chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer. "Today's decision by the FERC trial judge reinforces our belief that our merger transaction does not have any negative impact on the regional electric market. Our momentum continues to build as we focus on closing this transaction by year end."

The settlement agreement reached on September 14 with the FERC staff and all of the major parties was contested by only one intervenor, the City of Wichita, Kansas. In his opinion, the FERC administrative law judge said that the City of Wichita "has failed to provide a basis for arguing any material issues of fact . . ."

Westar Energy, which will combine the electric operations of KCPL, KGE and KPL, will focus exclusively on efficient, safe and reliable electric service. It will be a publicly traded company on the New York Stock Exchange with the ticker symbol (WSR).

Wittig said the company will file a request for an expedited ruling from the full Commission and expects a timely approval by the FERC.
